Course Rationale

Through reflection, research, learning and leading, the College of Education "prepares professionals for a variety of roles in educational settings and community agencies". This course will enable students to explore the teaching profession through observations, interviews, reading, writing, reflections and exposure to diverse groups within the community. As a result, students will have the knowledge, skills and dispositions necessary to seek a career in teaching and work in diverse school settings. In addition, students will be exposed to a variety of societal issues to challenge their personal beliefs about teaching and learning and commit themselves to teach thus take a leading role in improving education in the commonwealth, the nation and the world.

Attendance, Reading and Participation

Students will have a moderate amount of reading each week. As future teachers, students are expected to read the assigned chapters and associated readings, attend class regularly, and actively participate in class discussion. Class participation is critical to the success of students, and it adds to the success of the course. Participation includes being prepared for class, involving oneself in class discussions and activities, assuming responsibility for one’s own learning and contributing to the learning of others.

Late Assignments Policy - Assignments turned in late without an acceptable excuse will receive no more than 50% credit based on completion, grammatical errors and so on.

Attendance Policy - Students are expected to attend ALL class sessions. Attending class is an important part of succeeding in any course, especially a seminar/discussion-based course like EDU 200. Perfect attendance includes coming to class on-time and remaining in class for the entire class period. Excused absences, as defined in Student Rights and Responsibilities (<http://www.uky.edu/StudentAffairs/code>), are acceptable. Students are urged to contact the instructor by phone or email prior to class if they are unable to attend. Excused absence proofs are required. If students are absent, without an acceptable excuse, their overall percentage total will be deducted by 5 points for each unexcused absence.

Field Experience

Technology

As mentioned above the modes of instruction for this course include lectures, discussions, guest speakers and field experience. In addition, students will use blackboard to check weekly announcements, complete some assignments and submit written typed papers. It is therefore the responsibility of each student to stay up to date with daily course activities. In order to access blackboard and write papers, students must have access to a computer. Computer lab facilities can be found throughout campus with a few located in both Taylor Education Building and Dickey Hall. For assistance on how to use blackboard please contact the UK Help Desk at <http://www.uky.edu/UKIT/> or 257-1300. You may also contact the teaching and Academic Service Center at <http://www.uky.edu/TASC/DL/BBsupport.php>.

Extra Credit Possibility

Students will have opportunities to earn a total of 15 extra credit points (three points per event) to boost up their final course grade. Students will earn points by doing any the following:

- Attend workshops and professional development events sponsored by the Office of Academic Services and Teacher Certification, the Kentucky Education Association Student Program and the Minority Educators Association
- Attend College of Education student organization meetings/outreach programs
- Volunteer (for additional hours) with an after-school and/or community agency to work with children and learn more about the teaching profession.

Description of Assignments

Reading and Quizzes:

There will be weekly reading assignments that address the week's topic. Reading assignments will include chapter readings from the required textbook and other supplemental reading materials. It is the responsibility of each student to complete reading assignments prior to class time and prepare for quizzes. To ensure that materials are read regularly and in a timely fashion, quizzes will be unannounced and will cover information from readings and other course materials. There will be a total of five (5) quizzes throughout the semester.

Field Journal/Reflections:

One of the requirements to complete and earn a passing grade in this course is to complete a minimum of 10 clock hours of field experience. Students are encouraged to observe or work in an after-school program in Lexington and surrounding areas serving low-income and diverse student population to earn hours. Once the hours are completed, students are required to create a written product to reflect on their experience: what they have learned, how they are impacted by the work, how and what they think they have contributed to the agency and its clientele, and whether or not they would participate in activities like these again in the future.

Note: Each student must complete a background check through the Fayette County Public School system in order for anyone to volunteer or work in the public school related organizations. More information on the background check and the field experience's placement will be provided during the first week of class.

Web Assignments:

The purpose of this assignment is to help students investigate and learn more about different professional matters associated with the teaching profession. Using the World Wide Web, student will investigate and learn more about the work of the Kentucky Education Department (KDE) and the Kentucky Education Professional Standard Board (EPSB). In addition, students will research K-12 trend data for Kentucky along with different career opportunities in teaching, teachers' subject area interests and school levels, shortage areas in Kentucky and beyond, employment opportunities, salary and benefits, voucher system, safety and discipline, diversity in schools, professional education organizations and criteria for membership, and much more. To help students narrow down their search, a list of suitable questions will be given in class. Answers to each question will be submitted via blackboard.

Writing Assignments:

Successful completion of this course also includes three major writing projects. Each student is required to write the following: 1) Public School Teacher Interview: What, why, whom, and how does my teacher teach? 2) Educational Philosophy: What are my beliefs about teaching and learning? 3) Educational bibliography: How have my experiences influenced my beliefs about teaching and my decision to begin or consider a career in teaching?

Public School Teacher Interview: The purpose of this paper is to help students understand and experience the teaching craft to develop a clear picture of the profession and confirm their decision to enter the teaching profession. Each student will interview one teacher and write a paper summarizing the interview and reflecting on fundamental questions about teaching, learning and the nature and type of schools. Students must choose a teacher related to their future program of study (e.g. if a student plans to become a secondary math teacher, then he/she should choose a secondary math teacher to interview, etc.). A list of suggested questions for the interview will be given in class. Note: This is not a question and answer type of paper. As an interviewer and future teacher, you should instead reflect on what you learned from interviewing the teacher. Did it meet your expectations? Were you surprised by anything? Did your opinion about teaching and learning change as a result of the interview?

Educational Philosophy: The purpose of this paper is to help students establish a clear statement of their beliefs and values, the relation of those beliefs and values to teaching and learning, and their vision for their future schools and community/classroom environments. Through readings, field observations, interviews, class participation and interaction with diverse groups, students will write and develop a paper which states a clear understanding of who they are as individuals, what it means to teach in today's society, how they believe teachers can address student differences, what they need to know in order to teach all children and what it means to teach all children. Examples of belief statements will be distributed in class along with detailed instructions on how to complete this assignment.

Educational Bibliography: The purpose of this paper is to help students summarize and confirm the reasons why they choose or consider choosing a career in teaching. In this paper, students will first give an overview of themselves as individuals and their education backgrounds; second, students will describe special events and activities they have experienced and done throughout their education life cycle (including volunteer activities) which helped shape their views and attitudes about teaching, learning and schools. Third, students will describe how those experiences have helped or motivated them to enter the teaching profession. In other words, this paper is a way for you as students to examine how your experiences have impacted what you do as individuals and how others have contributed to who you are and who you continue to be.

Note: All essay papers must be typed, double spaced – two-page long using Times New Roman 12 point font with name, course number, instructor's name and assignment's title written at the top of the first page. All essays must be submitted electronically via blackboard using SafeAssign. The instructor will use this software to catch any major plagiarism in your paper. Students are strongly encouraged to proofread and cite information correctly using APA style. Essays will be evaluated on clarity and supporting ideas. Additionally, essays must be clearly written using Standard English and well organized. The University of Kentucky Writing Center staff is available for individual consultation for any students with writing concerns. To make an appointment or to find out more about the Writing Center and its services, please visit the center at <http://www.uky.edu/AS/English/wc/> or dial 859-257-1368.

Examinations

In addition to regular attendance participation, assigned readings and quizzes, reflection and a few writing pieces, there will be three exams. The first exam will cover chapters 7-11; the second exam will cover chapters 1-3 and chapter 6; and the third and final exam will cover chapters 4, 5 and 12. Each exam will be administered in class for the whole class period and will consist of true and false, multiple choice and objective questions derived from assigned readings from textbook and other materials, video clips and or presentations. Students are expected to take each exam as scheduled.
