11.	Explain whether the proposed changes to the program (as described in sections 1 to 10) involve courses offered by another department/program. Routing Signature Log must include approval by faculty of additional department(s).
	No other departments or programs are involved.
12.	List any other requirements not covered above?
	To be certified as a literacy specialist students must take the Praxis exam.
13.	Please explain the rationale for changes. If the rationale involves accreditation requirements, please include specific references to those requirements.
	The Kentucky Education Professional Standards Board has made changes in the requirements to certify literacy specialists within the state. These changes required that we make changes to our existing coursework and program to accommodate and be in compliance with the new requirements. The EPSB approved the changes to our coursework in June 2013.

Literacy Program Changes Plan A Degree Plan (Thesis Option)

Overall Rationale for Changes: The International Reading Association approved new standards for reading professionals in 2010. These new standards focus more on designing and implementing programs that help professionals become coaches and leaders of literacy and in general cover six areas: (a) foundational knowledge, (b) curriculum and instruction, (c) assessment and evaluation, (d) diversity, (e) literate environment, and (f) professional learning and leadership http://www.reading.org/General/CurrentResearch/Standards/ProfessionalStandards2010/ProfessionalStandards2010_Role5.aspx. After these standards were adopted, Kentucky's EPSB adopted them for use in literacy programs throughout the commonwealth. Thus, our programs must now be in alignment with these standards.

Revision Process Used: From 2011 through 2012 the literacy faculty embarked on a 6-stage revision process:

- I. Revise Literacy Program Mission, Vision, Program Goals (completed, Spring 2011)
Literacy faculty identified mission, vision, and program goals for the master's program in literacy education.
- II. Needs Assessment of Literacy Professionals in Kentucky (completed Fall, 2011)
As part of a master's course project, one of our graduate students conducted a needs assessment of literacy professionals in the state of Kentucky. In consultation with all literacy program faculty, he designed a 15-item needs assessment questionnaire (12 closed-ended questions, 3 open-ended questions). The questionnaire was designed to elicit information about respondents' perceived needs in terms of future literacy course delivery methods and course content. The questionnaire was sent to over 6,000 literacy professionals and had 319 respondents. The results of the questionnaire not only served as the student's course project in EDC 642, but also were used by literacy program faculty to inform the eventual revisions to the master's program in literacy education at the University of Kentucky.
- III. Master's Program Course Audit I: Alignment with Program Goals (completed Spring, 2012)
Literacy program faculty audited current course objective, activities, and assessments to determine how well they aligned with revised mission, vision, and program goals.
- IV. Master's Program Course Audit II: Alignment with National and State Standards (completed Summer, 2012)
As part of the process of accrediting the master's program as a Literacy Specialist program, literacy program faculty compared current course objectives, activities, and assessments with three documents: (a) International Reading Association Standards for Reading Professionals (2010), (b) Common Core State Standards, and (c) Kentucky Teacher Standards. The matrix that was produced highlighted strengths and needs within the current course offerings. The results of this analysis, in addition the earlier needs assessment of literacy professionals, informed the revisions to the master's program.
- V. Revisions to Master's Program (completed Fall, 2012)
In the fall of 2012, literacy faculty used information gleaned from the needs assessment and the course audits to redesign the master's program in literacy education based on the findings. The effort involved completely redesigning 5 current courses/syllabi and developing 1 new course in literacy leadership. New features of literacy program coursework:

1. All courses will be registered as distance learning courses (except the clinical practicum courses EDC 619/620, which will be hybrid)
2. 4 courses will be offered each summer (one of which, EDC 626 Trends and Issues in Literacy Education, is being proposed with the potential to have area teachers attend as professional development. Topics for the course will rotate so that it reflects emerging literacy education needs.)
3. 1 course (EDC 641) is being revised so that it could attract students outside of literacy education
4. Revised course sequence will permit students who want to attend as full-time students to graduate within 3 terms.
5. New course relate to Literacy Leadership (EDC 625)
6. Revised courses include:
EDC 621 Language and Literacy Development
EDC 641 Reading and Understanding Classroom Research
EDC 642 Research and Theory in Literacy Education K-12
EDC 537 Advanced Applications of Teaching Writing

VI. Revision to Master’s Program Course Sequence (completed Fall, 2012)

In the fall of 2012, literacy faculty developed distinct sequences of coursework that would provide future students with 3 pathways to degree completion: (a) Fast pace (degree completed within 3 terms), (b) Moderate pace (degree completed within 6 terms), (c) Part-time pace (degree completed within 9 terms)
